Remote/Community Isolations:

On 04/05/17 at 1756 hours, the Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch reported that Tulare County Sheriffs Office (TCSO) was experiencing a community isolation affecting California Hot Springs.

- Approximately 361, 9-1-1 end office trunks are down, however, residents can still dial out, but 9-1-1 is unavailable.
- All lines are in the process of being re-routed to TCSO Administrative Lines.
- At 2152 hours, the Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch advised the issue is still being worked on by Frontier and AT&T. Per Frontier, there was a delay in the response of an AT&T technician, however, as of 2129 hours the technician arrived on site and work has resumed.
- At 0116 hours on 04/06/17, the Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch advised that while troubleshooting, AT&T found a bad card on a Member of Trunk Group. AT&T dispatched a technician to the Bakersfield Office to retrieve a spare card to replace the bad one. There is still no eta for the completion of repairs.
- At 0437 hours, the Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch advised the issue has still not been resolved and the card being replaced did not bring the trunk group back online. Local AT&T and Frontier technicians are still troubleshooting the problem. There is still no ETA for the repair.
- Cal OES 9-1-1 Branch will continue provide updates as they are received.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- A potent late-season storm system will impact portions of Northern and Central California with widespread rainfall and strong winds beginning this evening and continuing into Friday morning.
- Breezy conditions and lingering showers will persist into Saturday before dry weather returns late Saturday.
- Southern California conditions will remain breezy and warm before the next two storm systems bring windy conditions and chances for rain and higher elevation snow to the Sierra on Friday and across the southern Great Basin on Saturday.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

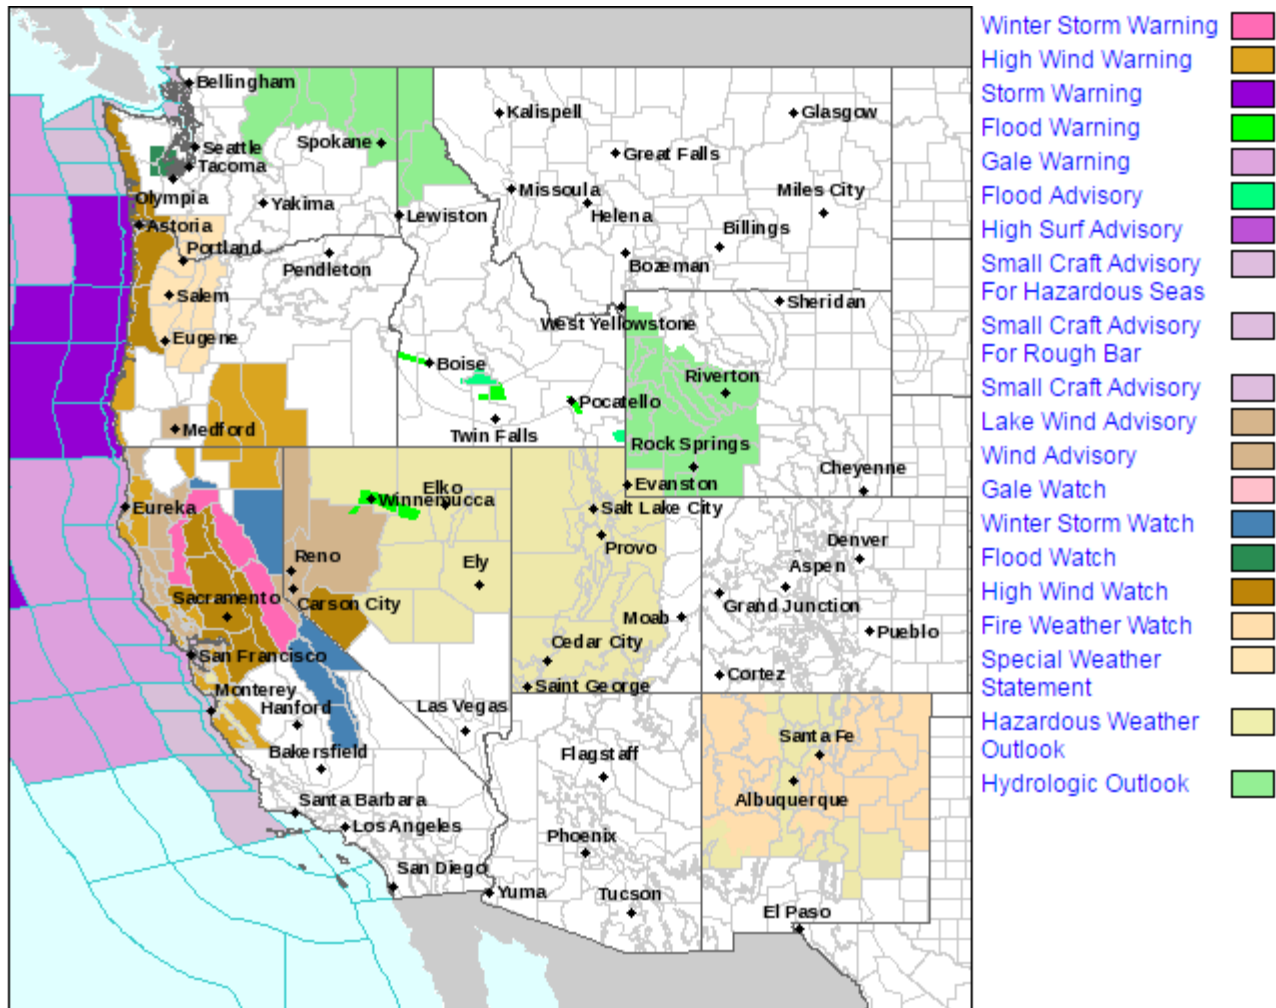

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

The first wave of precipitation from this storm will move inland early today, with only light to moderate precipitation and snow levels 5000 feet or higher and it will be windier than today, with gusts in open areas reaching 25-35 mph and 50-60 mph in the most wind-prone mountain areas. More waves of precipitation will move through tonight and last through Saturday night with moderate to heavy precipitation. Snow levels will be near 3000 feet near the Oregon state line and 5000 feet in the Tahoe reach. More waves of moderate precipitation are expected to move through Sunday night/Monday and Wednesday/Thursday. Gusty southerly winds are expected, and northern areas will receive the majority of the precipitation with each wave.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Temperatures will cool around 5 degrees today as the ridge becomes centered over the Desert Southwest. Minimum humidity will be mainly between 12% and 25% away from the coastal areas. A Pacific storm will bring significant cooling to the area Friday and Saturday. This storm will also bring showers to Central California starting this evening and to Southern California starting Friday evening. Showers will end across the region Saturday afternoon. Most of Central California will receive between 1 and 4 inches of rainfall, while most of Southern California receives less than a half inch of rainfall. The snow level will initially start at around 8,000 feet and end at around 5,000 in the north and 7,000 feet in the south. South to west winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the mountain ridges and desert passes Thursday evening through Saturday evening. A slow warming and drying trend will occur Sunday through the middle of next week as a ridge builds into California from the southwest.
